Dear Richard, 12/22/93

Here is the Epilogue I referred to in the letter I mailed you earlier this morning.

I have asked the committee chairman, Conyers, for galleys or for xeroxes for which I said I'd pay.

But he is undoubtedly home in Michigan or on vacation.

If I get it I may change or add some.

I still have the conclusions to do. I'm awaiting what I've asked others for.

Hope you all have a good holiday.

We are having two- the night before and the day after.

Best,

Jacob

Do I have your OK to write those who provided Posner's dust-jacket blurbs, the idea Charlie Winton says he likes?
